PROMPT # 8: THE PARTY

Write a scene from third-person POV (either limited or omniscient) of your characters at a party. Then, write a second version from the first-person POV of one of the characters. Same scene, two POVs. Be creative, but try to keep each story 300 words or less. Keep in mind that you're not only changing pronouns, you need to reveal what the character is seeing, feeling, and thinking from only their POV, looking through their eyes. It is a completely different perspective, and your writing should reflect that. High School: 300 words or less PER VERSION Middle School: 300 words or less PER VERSION Elementary: 3-5 sentences PER VERSION
