

1/7/2022 Prompt: Same Word (begin and end with the same word)

"...ciphers, riddles, puzzles, enigmas?"

"Ciphers?"

"Have you any interest in them, miss?"

"I suppose I do, sir. I love a good crossword."

"Have you an interest in government work?"

"I'd like to do my bit."

"Well then, Miss--, welcome to the Manor."

"Thank you, Mr--...is there a Mrs--?"

"No."

"Righto."

"Why?"

"No reason. Good day, Mr--."

"Hang on."

"Oh?"

"You're an enigma, Miss--...one I should like to solve."

"As are you, sir. Shall we puzzle each other out over dinner?"

"When the hands of the ladybird reach their outer limit?"

"I'll meet you in the COLKQ EXII, Monsieur Riddle."

"My heart is already there, Mademoiselle Cipher."

Q: What time is their date? Where in the Manor will they meet?

So, I feel like I cheated a little on the same word at the end, but I've been buried in Bletchley Park's history for several days and decided to give you a bit of a puzzle along with a budding romance. This is my first riddle, so it may be terrible!
